THE PROLETARIAT AND ITS DOCTORS

In the case of Mexico it was evident from the first that the politicians would be our greatest enemies, since we desire to open an era of deeds and have done with sterile talk.

In this topsy-turvy world one walks as in a hospital, stunned by the agonizing cries of the diseased. On every hand one sees unfortunates whose existence is one continuous violation of basic laws.

Around these cots, labelled "Proletariat," presses a multitude of doctors, greedy for fees and eager to display their special skill.

Here in Los Angeles they are illustrating Dante's "Inferno" by moving pictures, but Turner and many other writers have shown us conditions in Mexican labor halls besides which those of Dante pale.

Again Henry George has taught his followers that until land monopoly is abolished, human slavery, in its cruellest form, must continue unabated.

the Mexican race to annihilation; you might have a bread line stretching from the Capitol at Washington to San Francisco.

Not a winter passes but we hear the same complaint—that the demands on charity have never been so great; that the number of unemployed is without precedent.

Men of the Charles Edward Russell type labor in the accumulation of facts that demonstrate beyond all controversy the increasing sickness of this nation.

Never was there such an age of cant; of revolting, nauseating humbug. Just as millions attend church, though knowing that its doctrines will not stand examination.

Against all this the Mexican Revolution is a protest; the protest of a nation sick of cant; of a people that cannot afford to wait; of starvelings that need bread in the stomach.

"If the masses cannot eat the classes shall not," they begin to say in England. It is not a question of doctoring up the vote machinery or signing little slips of paper to elect new rulers.

From Emma Goldman, New York City, comes a check for $100.50. Of this $5.50 came from Minneapolis, through Ruth Olsen, and $95 from "A. Laterna," San Paulo, Brazil.

DISTURBANCES GROW WITH APPROACHING ELECTIONS

New Forces Occupy the Field to Madero's Great Alarm

American Refugees Flock Daily Across the Border

According to the latest reports Madero has sent Orozco into Chihuahua, to put down the Magonistas, as it has become the fashion to call the Mexican Liberals, and Blanco is moving against Zapata.

The "Los Angeles Times" despatches of Sept. 21 are that Texas towns are crowded with American refugees, that Mexico City bankers look for more uprisings if Madero is elected.

There is an eruption of cartoons in leading Mexican papers; cartoons that are extremely humorous, intelligent and bitter. Madero and Reyes are scored mercilessly.

All reports testify to increasing disturbances. Independence Day was celebrated in the City of Mexico, but troops were everywhere in evidence.

From the same paper, under date of Sept. 17, we clip the following as typical of many others which it would be tedious to reproduce.

The constant repetition of such items demonstrates that it has been found impossible to keep up the conspiracy of silence so long maintained.

In the view of the "Times" correspondent, who shows much comprehension of the general situation, Madero has the politicians whipped into line.

am but a simple citizen. I have been chosen by the immense majority, if not almost unanimously, as its candidate for the Presidency of the Republic.

"El Pais" having reported that the elections held recently in the state of Michoacan had been an absolute farce, its manager has been haled into court.

Glad We Bounced Him The scandal respecting the disappearance of vast sums set aside for the purpose of indemnifying those whom the political revolution had injured grows.

There is an eruption of cartoons in leading Mexican papers; cartoons that are extremely humorous, intelligent and bitter. Madero and Reyes are scored mercilessly.

All reports testify to increasing disturbances. Independence Day was celebrated in the City of Mexico, but troops were everywhere in evidence.

For the moment all eyes are riveted on Europe, where the curtain is rising on the greatest drama of the ages. Not for one moment would we claim for the Mexican Revolution more than its due or boast of what is merely a priority of a few months.

Spain's Fighting Blood For the moment all eyes are riveted on Europe, where the curtain is rising on the greatest drama of the ages.

Remember Ferrer

Ferrer celebration, Burbank Hall, 542 S. Main, Friday evening, Oct. 13. You know what is going on in Spain, and it has been going on ever since they murdered Francisco Ferrer, Oct. 13, 1909.

Rendered Outcasts at Whim of Officials

Modern Civilization Revives Methods of Dark Ages

If one thought it possible to coax tyranny into the relinquishment of power one would study every form of blandishment. But unfortunately, as the storm gathers tyranny grows more and more alarmed.

From Republican France, where the first frown of economic trouble brings confiscation of telegrams and letters, there is bitter outcry.

This evening, when paying the Secretary of the Government our daily visit, he informed us that he was about to give instructions for action in connection with the publication of a supplement to the "Anarchist" paper.

No Paupers Wanted.

Corporations may have no souls, but governments are exceedingly sensitive; so much so that they punish insults with the Catholic Church's severest sentence—social ostracism.

Take a recent case, arising out of the troubles across our own Southern border. Margarita Ortega is a woman well known to all Liberals in the Imperial Valley country.

Flies across Desert. Gallegos, who beyond all question sold out at Mexicali, was made subject by Madero, since in the political world the wicked flourish as does the proverbial bay tree.

Governments, they tell us, derive their title to existence from the consent of the governed.

Deriding the Law.

Take another case that has as its location "Home" in the State of Washington. "Home" is a colony in which the members try to lead the free and simple life.

One is glad to learn that the I. W. W. immediately called to the rescue, for in all such cases protests must be made.

Nevertheless, there may be danger in screwing down the valve too tightly, and it may even be that the quick, sharp Russification of the United States will bring this most careless of all the nations to its senses.

W. C. O.

TRUE MARTYRS TO LIBERTY.

While we are applauding the heroic struggles of the Mexican proletariat let us not forget that another struggle, of equal intensity, is being waged with unflinching courage by their brothers of the same tongue on the other side of the Atlantic.

Through "Cultura Proletaria" we learn of the appeal for amnesty issued by thirty-seven political prisoners still lying, with apparently little prospect of a trial, in the cellular prison at Barcelona.

Shall Pryce Die? Monterey's Murder by Officials gives Us Warning

The trial of Gen. C. Rhys Pryce before United States Commissioner Van Dyke on the charge of robbery, alleged to have been committed in Lower California, has been in progress throughout the week.

Pryce's friends have rallied to his support with the most praiseworthy enthusiasm, and he himself has shown the deepest concern for the fate of former comrades.

Monterey Executed.

"Lured across the boundary line to the Mexican side with the promise that he would be given employment, Monrochus Monterey, a captain during the Lower California insurrection, was bound, gagged and shot to death in sight of persons on the American side.

"When Gen. Pryce was apprised of the deed, he covered his face with his hands, a tear trickled down his cheeks, and then he clenched his fists and bit his lips in helpless rage.

"For several days Monterey sat in the courtroom here, where the Mexican government is seeking to extradite Gen. Pryce on charges of murder, arson and robbery.

The adjourned hearing of the charges against the members of the Junta of the Mexican Liberal Party is set for Sept. 30.

New York Awake

Most successful open-air meetings on behalf of the Mexican Revolution are reported from New York City; that of Sept. 16, held in Rutgers Square, having attracted as large an audience as the well-advertised meeting in Union Square.

The "L'Era Nuova" club announces an entertainment and dance, half of the profits from which are to go to the Mexican Liberal Party.

The social for the benefit of "Regeneracion" has been set definitely for Sunday evening, Oct. 1. The committee promises an excellent program of songs, speeches, dancing, etc.

It is the "Appeal to Reason's" own look-out, but we fancy the Socialist stomach is sick of being fed upon sensationalism.
